Please Allow Us to Use This Space to

Extend Our Appreciation to

Arizona:

For being a beautiful place to do business in -

For originating some of the largest, most varied, broadest and most taxing book orders it has been our privilege to handle, orders which included items from all over the world and items as scholarly as it is possible to find.

For providing us with a panorama of promise where we believe we see the approach of a future bright with intellectual and creative activity; a "making the deesrt flower" reminiscent of the traditions of Chaldea and Egypt.

THE EDITOR'S ROUND-UP

There comes a time in every employee's life, when he must reckon with the accumulated years of service. Retirement, whether voluntary or compulsory, has a way of creeping up on employees all too quickly. Some welcome it happily; others try to avoid it vehemently. Some are financially protected; others are economically insecure. In all situations, it seems as though this transition from active to inactive status brings an emotional state either sound and of well being, or disturbed and of neurosis. In observing our membership, and others employed in library positions in the state, one quickly realizes that there are many persons involved in our professional endeavors who are heading for retirement in the near future.

Fortunately most of the public supported positions are now benefited with satisfactory retirement provisions, but such benefits will not match the usual annual increment to which persons have become accustomed. Thus some of our personnel may face a number of hardships, however we hope that those will be few, and that the majority of our colleagues will be adequately prepared for the days of leisure ahead. Now after years of wishing for time to read and to enjoy books, that time comes. One should anticipate that librarians would be the best adjusted and the happiest individuals after sixty-five, with a host of things to keep them busy and occupied. Certainly the Arizona State Library Association has given very little attention to the personal problems and welfare of its members. It is not too late vet for the Association to have a Geriatrics Committee to plan and to provide for the old age of its members who still may continue their interest and their support in Association activities. The Editor recommends life membership for our emeritus colleagues so that they may know that they are still one of us.

Cordially yours,
HAROLD WALTER BATCHELOR
Editor

OVER 150,000 VOLUMES...

... the largest stock of scientific and professional books in the world for specialized and immediate service to you.

This tremendous stock for you to choose from, coupled with 30 years of experience in scientific and professional book handling for you to draw upon, equals=OUT-STANDING SERVICE.

To help guarantee you the continued high standard of Stacey SERVICE, we have just increased our office and warehouse floor space to some 18,000 square feet — all devoted to medical, technical, business, and how-to-do-it books.

These complete and modern facilities are designed for an even greater degree of speed and efficiency. We will always welcome a chance to serve you.

THE PRESIDENT'S ROUND-UP

Writing this article, after the convention and the new officers having been elected, puts one in the "lame duck" class. I know other presidents have felt much as I do. You appreciate the honor of representing and leading the Association. To be a good president you need time from your position. Many of us in our particular capacity find that time is just not available to handle the correspondence, to visit legislators and other persons interested in our program and to participate with committees.

By the end of the first year one begins to feel how the plans of the Association might be accomplished and to know persons who will help. For this reason mainly, I would recommend that the Association consider lengthening the term of office of the president to a two year period or make provisions for reelection.

In our group we have members with many ideas. Some of these ideas conflict. The president must consider the conflicts and attempt to find a solution that satisfies both groups. This is not always an easy matter. This exchange of ideas and differences of opinion is healthy. For example, the report of the Workshop Committee at the convention, whether you agree or not with the findings of the Committee, brought definite matters to the front for discussion, clarification and future action. I would see the Workshop Committee continued with some new members. The Executive Board might use the report of this Committee for definite action on particular points during the year.

Above all I would challenge the new Executive Board to continue developing a feeling of camaraderie and friend-liness among our membership and to other organizations and friends outside our membership.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM BARTELS
President

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Harold W. Batchelor, Editor ARIZONA LIBRARIAN Arizona State College Library Tempe, Arizona Dear Editor:

At the recent annual meeting of the Arizona State Library Association held in Tucson, the Workshop Committee, of which you were chairman, presented a list of proposed activities which you felt the Association might profitably undertake. To my amazement there was no mention of library extension, and I was appalled that a committee made up of seven Arizona librarians would so flagrantly ignore the most important problem of this library-impoverished state. I was also shocked—and ashamed. Shocked that the past work of Arizona librarians should be so pointedly dismissed. Ashamed of the professional apathy that seems to engulf far too many others.

Well, what about library extension, Mr. Chairman and

Mr. Editor?

Name a greater project—name a more needed one! Sincerely yours, PHYLLIS BALL
